International Women's Day: Women Who Inspire Our Work

The White House recognizes some of the brave women who were pioneers of equality and continue to inspire the work of this administration.

"We're in this together. Because these girls are our girls."

"#OneDayIWill see a world where every child can go to school and fulfill their boundless potential." --First Lady Michelle Obama on International Women's Day

Notes from the Road: The Vice President and Dr. Biden's Trip to the Middle East

This week, the Vice President and Dr. Biden are traveling through the Middle East: from the United Arab Emirates to Israel to the West Bank to Jordan. "It's only when women are empowered that families are empowered," Dr. Biden said while celebrating "a#ŽInternationalWomensDay" in Dubai.

"Today, on International Women's day-and every day-we must stand with the women and men that are committed to a future in which our daughters and sons have equal opportunities to thrive. We must do more to ensure that all girls and boys are able to pursue their passions and be treated with respect, regardless of gender; to make sure women have a seat at the table, recognize their value and welcome their contributions. If we do that, then tomorrow we will see an even brighter future for our communities, our countries and the world." -Dr. Biden spoke with students today at a school in Dubai, United Arab Emirates in celebration of #InternationalWomensDay.

"When women are free to pursue their dreams, nations are more safe, more secure, and more prosperous."

-- President Obama on International Women's Day

Today, the state of Vermont took action to provide paid sick leave for Vermont's working families. This means that thousands of families will no longer have to choose between losing income and taking care of a sick child.

With this news, the President is renewing his call to Congress to help us catch up with other advanced nations and provide this basic security to all Americans.

Until Congress acts, other states should follow Vermont's lead -- because giving hardworking Americans a fair shot to get ahead is the right thing to do." US Government Source from 20D
